

Anglia Ruskin
University

Cambridge Ruskin
International College

Did you know an adult human being is made of around 7,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000 atoms?

BSc Biomedical Science

Studying the IBMS accredited BSc Biomedical Science at CRIC and Anglia Ruskin University will allow you to;

- Develop research, analytical and diagnostic skills
- Learn techniques and methodologies used to diagnose and monitor diseases
- Study specialist aspects including medical genetics and microbiology
- Explore the wider social, economic and ethical implications of biomedical science.

Throughout your degree you will have access to specialist facilities and equipment including;

- microbiology laboratories
- specialist tissue culture
- flow cytometers
- thermal cycling equipment (for amplifying and quantifying DNA)
- a range of microscopes including a confocal and a scanning electron microscope
- intelliPATH immunohistochemistry slide-stainer.

Find out more

anglia.ac.uk/cric

+44 (0)1223 695700 cric@anglia.ac.uk

 @cricstudents

 facebook.com/CRICuk